The YourCity.MD geo-targeted, city health care platform today released its new patent-pending One-Click Help Health search engine widget that may be placed inside any TV, radio or newspaper website for free. YourCity.MD will also supply Health News Headlines updated seven times per day through RSS feeds, also at no cost.

In addition, stations can sell advertising around all the health news and search engines and keep 100% of the revenue.

The One-Click search engine is available in every major U.S. city. It matches symptoms, disease or condition to the proper "local" medical specialist listing, primary care doctor listings (for the referral) and local hospitals to treat the condition, all linked to patient and government ratings.

That same One-Click local matching report also displays up-to-date medical news, top health articles, National Institutes of Health articles, health videos, pharmacy listings and more.

Just as the old global Google search engine started inside of the Yahoo website, the new One-Click Help search engine is now available free to stations. It also includes physician-vetted content, technology and directories.

To add this free search widget to a website, just copy the national or local code from this link:
